

Jack Garman, DVM - Veterinarian / Owner

Education: University of Connecticut, Cornell University

Dr. Garman originally opened High Ridge Animal Hospital in the early 1970's and has been a critical part of the success of the hospital in the Stamford community.

A Native of Hartford, Dr. Garman went to the University of Connecticut for his undergraduate studies and then graduated from the Veterinary School at Cornell University in 1967. He worked at the Buffalo (NY) zoo for a year, then moved to Hollywood, Florida, to open a clinic. His Yankee blood drew him back to Stamford, where he began his career here at the High Ridge Animal Hospital. Having worked at the Buffalo and Miami zoos, he immediately began volunteering as the veterinarian for the Stamford Museum and Nature Center, where he spent a number of cold spring mornings delivering lambs, and cool fall nights dehorning bucks. Active in the Fairfield County and then Connecticut state veterinary associations, he was elected President of the CVMA in 1997.

Dr. Garman is now retired, allowing him to spend his much deserved time off for the hobbies that bring him such joy.

He and his wife Bobbi spend time with their 3 boys, 4 grandchildren, and three dogs, when they aren't gardening, sewing or fishing.